RE: Thorold Cogeneration Project, Ontario, Canada

I would like to thank Bermingham for the work you completed on the Thorold Cogeneration Project. In particular, the work on the cooling water discharge structure proved to be much more challenging than planned, both from a technical and schedule perspective. Bermingham acted like a true project partner, getting involved during the design phase and offering recommendations to improve constructability and minimize costs.

When we faced challenges during construction, Bermingham again partnered with us to resolve issues quickly by working collaboratively with our design engineers. The experience of Bermingham's construction personnel and their equipment resources kept the work on schedule despite the challenges.

I look forward to working with you again on our future projects.

Regards,
